For the new plate we do not intend to send money to DOT to cover initial costs of productions. Instead, the revenues will be all deposited to the conservation fund.

Thank you,

Subject: RE: BB0325, Additional Endangered Resources Licence Plate

I don't know if I can say this is how DOT usually handles specialty plates, but there are many examples of specialty plates for which DOT retains at least some of the initial costs of production. Aaron Gary suggested that this initial cost may be in the range of about $ 40,000, but DOT would need to be consulted for a more exact current figure. For examples of statutes providing DOT with costs of production see 341.14(6r) 5. (the existing endangered resources plate), 7., 9., 9m., 10. and 11., stats.

The intent is to have a new, second plate and keep the current wolf plate.

I am checking with DNR on the second question—do you know if this is how DOT usually handles specialty plates? The revenue would definitely go to the Conservation Fund, I am just unsure about DOT retaining a portion.

Thank you,
Leah Wavrunek

Subject: BB0325, Additional Endangered Resources Licence Plate

Ms. Wavrunek,

A couple of questions about this draft request:

1. Does DOA want a new special group plate to be designated under s. 341.14(6r) (f) or a second design for the existing plate under 341.14(6r) (f) 50.?
2. If they want the first, does DOA want revenue from the new plate to go to the conservation fund (as for the existing plate) and does DOA want DOT to retain any money to cover initial costs of production?

Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

TRANSPORTATION

DRIVERS AND MOTOR VEHICLES

Under current law, any group or organization may apply to DOT for designation as an authorized special group. If the application is approved, members of the authorized special group may obtain special distinguishing license plates for certain vehicles, including automobiles and motor homes, that are owned or leased by special group members. A fee, in addition to the regular registration fee for the particular kind of vehicle, is charged for the issuance or reissuance of most special plates.

Before October 2, 1998, authorized special groups whose members may obtain special plates were specifically enumerated in state law. Current law provides that specific enumeration in state law of authorized groups is limited to those special groups enumerated before October 2, 1998.

Under current law, an authorized special group is specifically enumerated for persons interested in obtaining special plates expressing their support for endangered resources. In addition to the regular vehicle registration fee, special group members are required to pay a $25 fee for the issuance or reissuance of the special plates and a $25 annual fee that is deposited in the conservation fund to be used by DNR for the purposes of the endangered resources program. The design of these plates is determined by DOT in consultation with DNR, but such plates must be as similar as possible in color and design to regular license plates.

This bill establishes a second authorized special group specifically enumerated in state law for persons interested in obtaining special plates expressing their support for endangered resources. The fees charged to special group members and the design requirements are the same as for the existing special group plates.

For further information see the state fiscal estimate, which will be printed as an appendix to this bill.

The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

endangered resources

1 AN ACT ...; relating to: the budget.

Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under current law, any group or organization may apply to DOT for designation as an authorized special group. If the application is approved, members of the authorized special group may obtain special distinguishing license plates for certain vehicles, including automobiles and motor homes, that are owned or leased by special group members. A fee, in addition to the regular registration fee for the particular kind of vehicle, is charged for the issuance or reissuance of most special plates.

Before October 2, 1998, authorized special groups whose members may obtain special plates were specifically enumerated in state law. Current law provides that specific enumeration in state law of authorized groups is limited to those special groups enumerated before October 2, 1998.

Under current law, an authorized special group is specifically enumerated for persons interested in obtaining special plates expressing their support for endangered resources. In addition to the regular vehicle registration fee, special group members are required to pay a $25 fee for the issuance or renewal of the special plates and a $25 annual fee that is deposited in the conservation fund to be used by DNR for the purposes of the endangered resources program. The design of these plates is determined by DOT in consultation with DNR, but such plates must be as similar as possible in color and design to regular license plates.

This bill establishes a second authorized special group specifically enumerated in state law for persons interested in obtaining special plates expressing their support for endangered resources. The fees charged to special group members and the design requirements are the same as for the existing endangered resources special group plates but the words or symbols used on the second plate must be different from the existing one.

For further information see the state fiscal estimate, which will be printed as an appendix to this bill.

The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

In regards to the second requested change, I asked before this draft was initially prepared if any amount of money from the license plate fees should be applied to DOT expenses. I was told at that time that all proceeds should be applied to the conservation fund. Am I correct in assuming that the initial decision has been changed?
